Editor’s Note

HIGHER EDUCATION AND RESEARCH

The fundamental objectives of higher education is three pronged – updating and advancement of knowledge, honing of technical skills propped up by laboratory experiments and most importantly culmination of the above two into inventions and discoveries that are useful to our society. Islamiah College is not like any other institution that spawns the graduates; rather it is a centre that ensures its products acquire all the above objectives.

Research is the hallmark for setting the standard of any institution. Recently, in the “Times” higher education Survey, 400 Universities were ranked in the world based on various criteria and the activity of research being the main. None of our so called premier institutes like, IITs, IISc could come within 300 ranks. UGC and DST, despite spending crores of rupees, are unable to find their product institutes take up the decent place in the world rankings. Unrelenting over this setback our institution strives incessantly to set an elite standard in higher education and research.

Wonderful research works are going on in Arts, Commerce and Science departments. Excellent infrastructure facilities are available in the campus, no need for the research scholars to move around for literature survey, but to confine themselves in our well-equipped library and networking laboratory. Sophisticated analytical instruments have been procured with the funds from the Department of Science and Technology for Chemical, Biochemical and Biotechnological research. Our College organizes umpteen Seminars, symposia and workshops thereby giving tremendous opportunity for the researchers’ meet and good exposure to the students on the recent trends of research. Research, once confined only to the universities, has now become much accessible to all because of the path-breaking trend and phenomenal achievements on the part of Islamiah College. Courtesy to our college, many doctorates nowadays hail from downtrodden rural society.

Our College has shaped into an admirable centre of research and has empowered itself to offer consultancy services to solve the environmental problems native to the neighboring industries. Campus interviews are frequently conducted to see off its graduates well placed.
